

IMP

INTERNATIONAL MESOTHELIOMA PROGRAM

As always, all proceeds will be donated directly to the International Mesothelioma Program (IMP) at Brigham & Women's Hospital. The pioneering program, now directed by Dr. Raphael Bueno, chief of the Division of Thoracic Surgery at BWH and co-director of BWH's Lung Center, is a leader in the development of treatments and therapies for Mesothelioma. The IMP has an impressive team of surgeons, specialists, researchers, and other medical and social professionals who have dedicated their careers to fighting Mesothelioma and enhancing the lives of those who are afflicted. Please visit www.impmeso.org for more info.

Mesothelioma is a rare form of lung cancer caused by exposure to asbestos particles. The cancer has a long latency period of 25 to 40 years after first exposure before any symptoms occur. Once symptoms occur, the deadly disease spreads quickly and is currently incurable. In the United States, over 3,000 new cases are diagnosed each year. Experts believe the number of cases will continue to increase over the next 20 to 30 years due to the amount of asbestos particles released into the air after the World Trade Center attacks on September 11th, 2001.

Lynn Police Lt. Stevan Downey died in 2004 at age 58 due to Mesothelioma. Despite being in great physical health and receiving the best treatment available, this fast-moving disease took Lt. Downey's life within five months of his diagnosis.

It is critical that awareness and money are raised to combat this awful disease.
